BETHANY COLLEGE

BETHANY, WEST VIRGINIA 26032

1992 BETHANIAN

The fun never seems to end in our world. Whether its playing in the leaves, rolling in the snow or lying in the sun, Bethanians know how to have a good time.

This type of fun is demonstrated above as a group of Bethanians take a breather between classes to frolic amid the multicolored leaves outside the cafe.

The period spent in a world of our own gave us a better understanding of the world unknown.

IN OUR WORLD

Bethany extends beyond scenery

Worlds apart from other colleges, Bethany sits on an isolated hill in the pan-handle of West Virginia. The beautiful campus catches the eye of many, but those who attend this college find that its true beauty goes far beyond a picturesque village. Bethany is a world all its own with certain areas that no outsider could ever understand. And those of us who live here come to realize that we are truly in a world all our own.

IN OUR WORLD

Trends and Traditions complement each other

Bethany is a mixture of trends and traditions. The trends come from the students and the way that they live. Traditions are evident in every aspect of the campus and college life from Old Main's splendor to Friday night at the bar. It is this joining of trends and traditions that brings students from all over the world to study and live in our world called Bethany.

IN OUR WORLD

Housing units are worlds within our world

Even in Our World subtle differences are evident. A lot of the variations occur within the subcultures of the housing units. At times, living together is enough to form a world within a world. Each housing unit develops a unique personality and devises activities that only they understand. Despite their differences, the housing units all come together to form a perfect picture of our own little world.

IN OUR WORLD

Our world of sports had its ups and downs

The world of sports had many winners. Both the men's and women's soccer teams and the softball team captured PAC titles. The men's basketball team completed a successful season by beating PAC champion W&J in post-tournament play. The baseball, football and swim teams over came disappointing seasons by sticking together, respecting one another and having hope for the future. In our wide world of sports there was the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat.

The Whole Story

Gridders end second rebuilding season 2-7

Although the gridders ended their season 2-7, the record does not tell the whole story.

Sophomore Derek Scavnicky led all Bison passers, throwing for 1,211 yards and nine touchdowns on 87 completions.

Sophomores Pat Gregory and Pat Leborio finished as the top two rushers. On 68 attempts, Gregory gained 458 yards, scoring four touchdowns. On 73 attempts, Leborio gained 336 yards, scoring one touchdown.

In receiving statistics, junior Mike Stroud led the way with 27 catches for 390 yards and two touchdowns.

Defensively, senior co-captain Dan Rovira had a monster season to end a distinguished career at Bethany.

Rovira had a total of 150 tackles, three fumble recoveries, one interception and 20.5 sacks. (by Shellie Smith)

Soccer Success

Men's team wins 13th consecutive PAC title

The booters entered their successful season with 15 returning lettermen including 12 starting players who led them to a 16-4-2 record for the year.

Ten shutouts helped clinch the 13th consecutive Presidents Athletic Conference title, boosting the Bison record to an impressive 20th win in the PAC overall.

The team's tradition of outstanding accomplishments continued as 12 team members received All-Conference awards. Senior John Ault was named the PAC's Most Valuable Player Award, the 19th such honor awarded to a Bethany player.

In his 24th season as head coach, John Cunningham was named Coach of the Year for the 17th year in a row. Peter Bokolas began his first year as the team's graduate assistant coach.

The team received a NCAA post-tournament bid winning in the first and second rounds of the regionals. The dream of a final four play-off trip to San Diego ended with an 1-0 loss to Ohio Wesleyan. (by Debbie Williams)

Domination

Women's soccer receive PAC's top honors

In the first year of women's soccer as an official sport in the Presidents' Athletic Conference, the women's team dominated the PAC. The Bison made a name for themselves by capturing the league championship with a perfect 4-0 record in conference action. The season of accomplishments was topped off by Coach Jan Forsty being named PAC coach of the year, two players sharing most valuable player honors and the nomination of nine women to All-Conference teams.

Junior Kelsey Barber and sophomore Kelli Marsteller shared MVP honors. Both were also named to the All-PAC First Team. Marsteller led the team with 34 points scored while Barber had 32.

Senior captain Anne Zack and freshman Chris Gaster earned first team honors and junior captain Kim Nagy received a position on the first PAC team as keeper.

Winning Season

Personal goals play key role in season

The volleyball team fielded an explosive combination of youth and experience to sport their first winning season since 1987.

Coach Lisa Campanell-Komara had a goal for her team: 20 wins. She didn't know that in reaching it so many individual accomplishments would be achieved.

Senior captain Holly Jo Sensenich's hustle and dedication made her a great inspiration for the team. Sensenich moved into second place in the record books for career kills and set assists. She was sixth this season in the PAC for kills and seventh for assists.

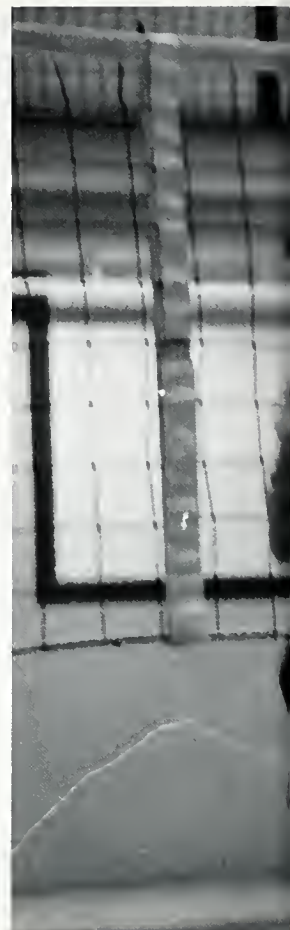

Lorraine Ramhoff was chosen to the All-PAC first team. She finished second in the conference for kills and third for serving aces, and was named the team's MVP.

Jennifer Haggerty was named to the All-PAC second team, and placed second with blocks. Freshman Michelle McGlinchey placed fifth in the PAC with 60 blocks. Julie Regan "served" her role to the point of near perfection and led the PAC in serving aces with 106.

Building Season

Runners take third in PAC

Even though the Bethany Cross-Country team did not fare well in regional action, they managed to place third place in the Presidents' Athletic Conference, behind Grove City, who finished first.

The women's team was led by the efforts of junior Christine Haught, sophomore Amber Parsons and junior Terri Allen. Two of the women suffered broken ankles during the season, sophomore Dorothy Minch and freshman Jennifer Parker.

The men's team was led by sophomore Scott King, junior Alan Sims and senior Ed Liberatore. King was named to the All-Conference Second Team for his ninth place finish in the PAC meet.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Bison Net Winning Season

The 1991-1992 Bethany Bison men's basketball team ended a successful season by winning the Presidents' Athletic Conference post-season tournament with a victory over the conference champion Washington & Jefferson.

The Bison hoopsters ended regular season play with a record of 12-10 overall. Their record in PAC play was an impressive 5-3 which gave them a third place conference ranking behind Thiel and Washington & Jefferson.

Four members of the team received honors in the PAC All-Conference selections. Center Jeremy Gillin, sophomore, was named to the All-PAC First Team.

Senior guard Albert Palsa received All-PAC Second Team honors, while sophomore forward David Hamilton received honorable mention. Freshman forward Joe Childress was named runner-up for Freshman of the Year.

Freshman point-guard Shawn Holt summed up his feelings about the season by saying, "I think we had a better team than our overall record showed." (by Tanya Yucker)

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

A Roller Coaster Season

The women's basketball team experienced a season which resembled a roller coaster ride at an amusement park.

The Bison started the pre-season in September with 11 members. Senior guard Shanley Reeves said, "I thought we would win the conference because we had the people."

During the season, one by one, players began to get off the ride. Amy Farmer, junior forward, was the first to go when she twisted her knee during a scrimmage. Junior Lori Woods, guard, broke her wrist during a game. This string of injuries left the Bison with four seniors, two sophomores and two freshmen.

With this line-up there was a lot of experience, but as Marie Luckino, freshman guard said, "We would all work hard and play together but it always seemed that in the last few minutes we just did not pull ahead."

The team never let their spirit down and ended the season with a berth in the Presidents' Athletic Conference playoffs. Unfortunately, the Bison lost in the first round to Thiel.

Even though the season did not go as well as expected, the Bison showed that they could handle the ups and downs of a roller coaster ride without getting discouraged. (by Chris Colcombe)

SWIMMING

Making Waves

The Bethany College Swim Team led by coach John McGowan faced an uphill battle during the 1991-1992 season. January term marked the start of a demanding season requiring much dedication from the swimmers.

The men's and women's teams each competed in eight regular meets and ended their seasons at the Grove City Invitational which also served as the Presidents' Athletic Conference championship meet.

Both Bethany teams placed sixth in the overall invitational and third in the PAC. Senior Gus Schnell placed second in both the 100- and 200-yard backstroke while the relay teams placed third in five different events.

Sophomore Erin Gannon was the only individual to place for the women Bison when she took third place in the 500 yard freestyle. However, the women's relay teams also placed third in five events.

Even though the Bethany swim team did not have a successful season according to their win-loss record, they showed a lot of spirit and dedication. (by Debbie Williams)

BASEBALL

Building foundations

The Bison baseball team ended its 1992 season with a record of 12-20 overall and 7-9 in the Presidents' Athletic Conference.

"We had a down year in terms of wins and losses," head coach Rick Carver said. "However, we laid a foundation for a successful future." That foundation includes five returning all-conference players.

Six Bison players were named to All-PAC teams. Second baseman Jay West was named to the first team All-PAC squad for the second consecutive year. Sophomore pitcher Mike DiLucia, who led the league with 61 strikeouts, was named to the All-Conference Second Team. Junior designated hitter Steve Sparks, junior third baseman Dan Rovira and freshmen TJ Billiard and Bill Matteson all received honorable mention.

In addition to receiving All-Conference first team honors, West, a senior, was named to the American Baseball Coaches Association 1992 Mideast Region second team. He was also recognized as the Bison Most Valuable Player. West earned these honors after a stellar season that included breaking the single season hit record with 46 hits. (by Tanya Yucker)

SOFTBALL

Dream season becomes a reality

What began simply as a dream became reality as the softball team swept the Presidents' Athletic Conference to claim their second straight title. In the process of achieving this goal, they also broke a team record by winning 16 consecutive games. They ended their exciting season with record of 20-7-1.

Included in those figures are the results of their spring trip to Pensacola, Fla. There the team went 4-4 against opponents from Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, Alabama, Missouri and Tennessee.

Contributing to the perfect PAC 8-0 record, the offense ran away with 55 runs. On defense, the pitching staff threw three shut-outs, including sophomore LaDonna Tomei's no-hitter against Grove City College.

Despite these accomplishments, many games came down to the wire and strategy played an important role.

No matter what the circumstances, the team pulled together on and off the field resulting in both a winning season and a second conference title. (by Stefani Magnino)

TRACK & FIELD

A season of hurdles

The track teams faced many hurdles this year. The largest obstacle the teams faced were the low number of participants. Only 13 men and six women competed on this year's squads.

This problem was not unique to Bethany as low participation resulted in the women's Presidents' Athletic Conference meet being cancelled.

The men's PAC meet was held on Bethany's newly built all-weather track. On that cold, rainy day the men were able to place in many individual events and take fourth overall in the meet. Junior Jamie Rogerson shared Most Valuable Player honors with a member of the Thiel team.

Christine Haught highlighted the women's season when her time of :16 in the 100 meter high hurdles set a new school record.

CHEERLEADERS

Keeping Spirits High

With 1:09 remaining in the homecoming football game, Bison freshman quarterback Kevin Heller connected with junior tailback Pat Gregory to give Bethany a 23-19 win over the Gannon Golden Knights. On the sidelines, voices rang loud and pom-poms swooshed as the Bethany cheerleaders supported their team to victory.

When Carol Morgan agreed to be adviser to the cheerleaders she felt like she was standing on shaky ground.

"Finding out two weeks before homecoming that I was the new adviser meant I had to get my act together," she said. "That meant finding people who wanted to cheer, getting uniforms and having practice every night."

The hard work began and the reality of the sport of cheer-leading went far beyond simply jumping about at Saturday afternoon football games.

Within those two weeks, everything that needed to be accomplished had been. The cheerleaders started their season with new megaphones, pom-poms and rain jackets. Two-sided gloves were even purchased to help jazz up some routines.

As football season came to a close and basketball began, the cheerleaders did the best they could to keep the Bison spirits high. The snazzy signs made by the cheerleaders added a hint of enthusiasm to the atmosphere.

Summing up the year, freshman co-captain Jonie Farrar said she enjoyed her season as a Bethany cheerleader.

"The year was frustrating because of a lack of participation, but all and all, it was a fun learning experience," she said.

Morgan said she enjoyed getting to know the young women on the squad and hopes next year will be successful. (By Michele Gockstetter)

INDIVIDUALIZED

Campus sports go beyond the PAC

It wasn't possible for everyone on campus to be a member of a varsity sports team but that didn't mean they couldn't participate in sports. Through the intramural program, sporting activities were numerous and available to everyone.

Throughout the year, housing units and other groups were given the chance to compete against each other in such sports as flag football, soccer, basketball, softball and volleyball. The Soccer and Volleyball Clubs sponsored tournaments in which all interested parties could participate.

On a more daring

note, the newly established Outdoors Club sponsored a trip to a ropes course and a few even attempted bungee jumping. For those who preferred to stay on the ground, mountain biking and hiking were popular pastimes.

On a warm spring day it wasn't uncommon to see people walking toward Buffalo Creek with fishing poles in their hands or find a game of pick-up basketball taking place on the courts at Bethany Park.

Other activities that seemed to gain popularity included rollerblading and weightlifting. No matter what your preference, there was something for everyone on Bethany's campus. (by Tanya Yucker)

IN OUR WORLD

World events happen everyday

Just as Bethany is steeped in tradition, so are the events that take place in our world. From Homecoming and Greek Sing to Bid Day and Spring Weekend, the events are the same year after year. What is not the same is the flair and uniqueness that the participants bring to these events. This shows that even in our world tradition can be made fresh.

Summer break was used to make some renovations

Changes

As September approached, Bethanians realized that the time had arrived for them to return. When they did return, many were not ready for the changes that had taken place during their three-month vacation.

The campus had joined a partnership with Macintosh computers and set up 11 student computer labs across campus.

Another visible change was the renovations to the football stadium and track. An new track and bleachers were installed, along with an expanded press box.

Even housing units were changed. Goodnight went from being a male independent housing unit to a co-ed dorm. Beta Theta Pi moved into Hagerman and the previous residents of Hagerman moved into the Delta Tau Delta house.

Renovations were also made to The Barn. It was painted, recarpeted and new lighting was installed.

Freshmen spend first few days getting acquainted with Bethany

Beginnings

For freshmen, college life began on August 31. The first four days were filled with stress. Worries about roommates, placement tests and being away from home for the first time ran rampant. After unpacking, getting ID's, meeting the administration and seeing parents off, there were meetings to attend. Students met the RAs, had hall meetings, and attended the convocation. The first day ended with a party at The Barn.

The following days were filled with scheduling, freshman seminar meetings, buying books and activities for the new students. The New Student Olympics was one of the highlights of orientation. It offered a wide variety of events, including the twinkie kick and egg toss.

On the final day of orientation, students could either go on a raft trip or take a tour of Bethany. And then it was time for classes to begin . . . (by Melodie O'Hanlon)

Young Hearts

During the weekend of October 11, students and alumni filled the campus for Homecoming Weekend 1991: For the Young at Heart. Students prepared their housing units for the alumni by decorating for the theme.

On Saturday morning the Homecoming parade began at Bethany Memorial Church and proceeded through town to the football field.

Parents' Weekend gives parents a chance to experience Bethany

Bethany Live

It is easy to tell when Parents' Weekend is near, and 1991 was no exception. On Friday students began cleaning rooms and hiding things they didn't want mom or dad to see. Parents, on the other hand, looked forward to the visit as a way to experience the world of Bethany.

A sunny Saturday provided a perfect atmosphere for everyone to enjoy sporting events. That night parents were invited to attend Greek Sing. It was as popular as ever, and Commencement Hall was once again filled to capacity as melodic phrases filled the air.

The "Talent Tonight" show was sponsored by FAC and more than 20 acts entertained the audience.

Diverse themes abound at the annual Greek Sing

Greek Sing was one of the most anticipated activities of the annual Parents' Weekend.

The participants in this year's festivities were Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Sigma Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Delta, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Mu, Sigma Nu and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Each of the Greek organizations worked very hard on their performances, as well as creating their own "costumes." The costumes ranged from gowns to hippie-garb to hillbilly attire.

Beta Theta Pi stole the audience's heart by singing the blues about losing their house and having to move to Hagerman. Zeta Tau Alpha was also a crowd pleaser and won for singing the children's song "Zippity Doo Da." (by Angie Rexroad)

Exciting

Bid Day is pure excitement for those acquiring a new family

After two weeks of hectic parties and utter confusion, the intense moment when the envelope was opened and a bid was revealed had arrived.

Bid Day was a time for the Bethany Greek system to gain new members and show house spirit. Coinciding with Valentine's Day, Bid Day allowed the new pledges to find a home—an entire Greek family right here at Bethany!

The night began with the traditional run up Cardiac Hill into the awaiting circle of sorority members, and the new fraternity pledges making their way to their respective houses. The remainder of the night consisted of Greek socializing with various sorority/fraternity mixers. (by Stefani Magnino)

Students enjoy themselves in snow that actually sticks

When snow covered the campus on Wednesday, March 11, classes were cancelled for Snow Carnival.

Other students chose to enjoy some plain old snow fun by throwing snowballs and sliding down Bethany's great hills.

High school students visit campus for Foreign Language Day

On the morning of April 9, Bethany's usual serene atmosphere was disturbed as the campus prepared for Foreign Language Day. The courtyard outside of Phillips Hall was filled with the hustle and bustle of organizations setting up their booths.

Area high school students were offered a wide variety of sights, sounds and experiences, from language competitions to carnival-like vending booths. While Bethanians found Foreign Language Day to be an effective way to increase the treasuries of their clubs and organizations, high school students found the competition to be an effective means of testing their foreign language abilities and helpful in experiencing college life first-hand. (by Diann Devart)

Founder's Day carries on despite the UMWA's informational picketing

Founder's Day, March 5, was an eventful day at Bethany College. Convocation was held at 11 a.m. in Commencement Hall, with the seniors donning caps and gowns for the first time.

An address was given by Dr. James O. Duke, a theology professor at Texas Christian University. He spoke about the role of religion in our society and the benefits of a liberal arts education at Bethany. Sophomore Kevin Cox was officially sworn in as president of the Student Board of Governors by junior Douglas Whitecotton, chief justice of the Student Court.

President D. Duane Cummins presided over the wreath-laying ceremony and a prayer was said by Dr. Frank Gorman, head of religious studies. The ceremony was originally scheduled for the afternoon but was moved to 8 a.m. due to picketing of United Mine Workers of America workers near campus. Students celebrate Perry Gresham Day

On Saturday, May 2, Bethany students celebrated Perry Gresham Day—honoring the former college president. Funded by the sale of tie-dyed shirts, the day successfully recaptured the spirit of the 1960's.

The day began with a parade at noon. It was followed by the coronation of sophomores Renee Tornichio and Tara Garden as Perry Gresham Day queens. Campbell Hall lounge was the site of further celebration, complete with refreshments and folk guitarists who provided music from the '60s.

While very few present-day Bethanians were alive during the '60s, Perry Gresham Day provided an opportunity to experience college life as it existed for many of their parents. In the end, most would agree that the only changes to occur involved the fashions and the language. (by Gretchen Stoltzfus)

Insurance costs, bad weather and a track meet move Spring Weekend inside

Despite a limited budget and inclement weather, the All-Campus Spring Weekend activities went on as planned. Friday night began in Benedum Commons when local-favorite Sweaty Bitch Hogs opened for the New York reggae band Israel Vibration.

Saturday's activities had to be moved to the cafeteria due to rain, but everyone still managed to enjoy a delicious barbecue, comedian A.J. Jamal, caricaturists, palm readers, and many other forms of entertainment. The weekend's activities concluded that evening as Renner Union brought in the band Oroboros to perform.

Special

Not all campus events come through the desk of Renner Union

There are events that take place on campus other than the traditional activities that take place each year. These events are just as important, if not at times more important, than these traditional ones.

From Karaoke night at the cafe to student forums on campus involvement, the events were of interest to the student body—whether they were for enjoyment or of a practical nature.

Many speakers and specialists visited the campus to share their expertise. The theater department was enlightened by actors who taught the Suzuki style of acting.

Groups of students took the initiative and planned forums and panels to discuss their concerns with college administration, nurturing a new era of student concern on campus.

Clubs and organizations sponsored various weeks throughout the year including things such as AIDS Awareness Week, Alcohol Awareness Week, and a week to promote environmental causes.

Renner Union offered a variety of performers and dances to entertain the campus, while each housing unit planned their own unique activities to keep their members occupied.

Not all of the events on campus were traditional; some were based on the need for such events in today's society. (by Diann Devart)

Traditional

May Morning Breakfast honors senior women

What does it take to get college women out of bed on a Saturday morning? How about a plethora of college men serving them strawberries and bagels? That was the scene on May 2 in Benedum Commons at the 45th annual May Morning Breakfast.

The morning began with musical entertainment provided by Judy Allison and a delicious breakfast was served by the brothers of Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu.

In her toast to the senior women sophomore Karrie Colvin wished them the best of luck in everything that they chose to do beyond Bethany. The speaker for the breakfast was Jane Barnett Leonard, a 1984 Bethany graduate, who works at the White House in the Office of Public Liaison. Leonard spoke of her career experiences and how they have affected her.

Suzi Cummins, wife of the college's president, also gave a short speech to the seniors. She said that she and the class of '92 arrived at Bethany at the same time and it seemed sad that only one of them would be graduating.

The breakfast concluded with the presentation of the Aleece C. Gresham Leadership Award which went to senior Kathleen McGrath. After the breakfast each senior woman was presented a plant which is a long standing Bethany tradition. (by Diann Devart)

Rewarding

Students honored at annual Honors Day Convocation

The annual Honors Day Convocation was Thursday, April 23 in Commencement Hall. Many individual and departmental awards were given to students who had shown exemplary work in their fields' of study.

The Anna Ruth Bourne Award was presented to Phi Mu for achieving the highest G.P.A. among the women's housing units. The W. Kirk Woolery Award was presented to Delta Tau Delta, who had the highest G.P.A. among the men's housing units.

The Francis O. Carfer Prize for Outstanding Senior was awarded to Janice Graf.

Casey Swaney received the W. F. Kennedy Prize for Outstanding Junior Man, while the Pittsburgh Bethany College Club Award for Outstanding Junior Woman was awarded to Melissa Kashey.

Psi Chi, a national honor society in psychology was established on campus; the charter members were recognized and new members were inducted into the society. Finally, several new members were inducted into the honorary societies Gamma Sigma Kappa and Kalon. The day was concluded with a reception at Pendleton Heights and a dinner for the students who had received recognition. (by Tanya Yuker)

IN OUR WORLD

Clubs & Organizations function as pieces to the puzzle

There are several pieces that make up Our World as we know it. Clubs and organizations play a big role in the life of a Bethanian beginning freshman year and continuing until graduation. Life could never be boring with all of the resources available to Bethanians. There were clubs of every size and shape; from the Outdoors Club to the Fire and Rescue Club. Through all this activity it was easy to see that clubs and organizations were truly pieces of the world of Bethany.

Theatre presents selfishness and greed with the

AMERICAN PLAYWRIGHTS

"The little theatre that could" is a fitting title for the growing theatre department. Could the season possibly include "Sexual Perversity in Chicago," "The Grapes of Wrath," and a Stephen Sondheim musical that was almost too much for Broadway to pull off?

This season the theatre welcomed Gary Kappel back to the stage for the opening show, "Another Antigone."

With October came "Sexual Perversity in Chicago" and "The Duck Variations." These plays featured six actors and plenty of four letter words about the selfishness of love and lust.

The last show of first semester was the stage adaption of Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath." A pool and a moving truck helped tell the story of an American family surviving in desperate times.

During Pulitzer playwright Wendy Wasserstein's "The Heidi Chronicles" the audience followed Heidi Holland through the trials and tribulations of the sixties, seventies and eighties.

Alpha Psi Omega Cabaret demonstrated the talents of the actors also in writing and producing.

The theatre ended with the Japanese, Kabuki style musical "Pacific Overatures." The show and the season proved a success darkened only by farewells to director Luke Hardt. NEXT. (by Aimee Richards)

Todd Prather and Stephen Barbour, along with a friend, added laughter to the stage during a scene of "The Duck Variations."

"The Grapes of Wrath," starring Aimee Richards, Dan Douglass, Kelsey Barber and Steve Kyhos, examined the struggles of a family trying to survive the Great Depression.

Joe Hindman, Renee Tornichio, Dan Douglass and Kate Baumgartner in "Sexual Perversity in Chicago" dealt with the relationships between men and women.

"Pacific Overtures" converted Wailes Theatre into the country of Japan. Dan Douglass, center, narrated the musical with song and haiku.

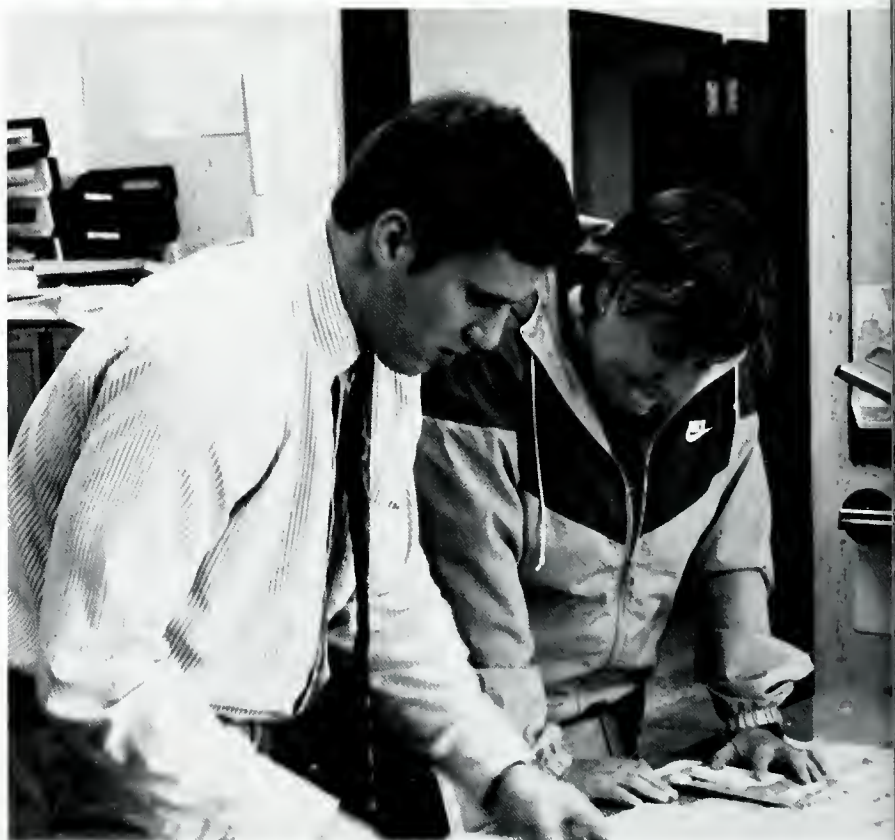

Kelsey Barber, seated, played the role of Heidi in "The Heidi Chronicles." Other cast members included, Stephen Barbour, Emily Vulgamore, Derek Stubbs, Jodi Grandstaff, Brenda Crooks, Kate Baumgartner and Jonathan Vogel.

IN OUR WORLD

Faculty and administration are on top

Our world is governed by a variety of people. But their faces are all familiar.

There are those who advise many clubs and organizations, those who are everywhere doing everything and even those who are always there to listen and lend a helping hand out of the lime light. Without the help of these dedicated people

Our World called Bethany would lose some of its charm and closeness that each of us has come to cherish.

Faculty And Administration

Beyond the name

On a small college campus, students often know all the professors by name. But sometimes there are characteristics of professors and topics they embrace which lead students to identify them quicker.

Conversations about textiles always lead to history professor Jack Lozier. It won't take long to trace Freudian allusions if you talk to Larry Grimes. The smell of pipe smoke would come from Mark Krause's office. Gale Thompson would be the person to consult about meditation. Birds are Jay Buckelew's neck of the woods. And if you have a question about Shakespeare, John Taylor is the man to see.

A variety of accents bring different dialects of English to the ears of Bethany students too. Whether it be the proper English of James Keegan, the Japanese of Fujio Sawtarie, the Arabic of Majid Sawtarie, the German of Dirk Schlingmann, the calm Irish of Father Pat, the Chinese of Zhou Lindong or the Scottish of Mary Bess Halford, many accents add to the academic conversations on campus.

To Bethany students, these are truths. Just as sure as a student is to get salt from the infirmary, the faculty are easy to recognize, just as they are easy to appreciate.

Seniors enjoy their last year

Seniors found that their last year in the world of Bethany was filled with many required aspects. The seniors began their busy journey with registration in early September when it seemed that graduation was worlds away. This journey was filled with last minute practicums, senior projects and comprehensive exams, all those little things that add up to make a senior's last year full of activities and stress.

IN OUR WORLD

Comprehensives bring stress and satisfaction

An inevitable occurrence in every Bethany senior's life—comprehensive exams. Comps, as they are lovingly referred to, include two days of written examinations and a one-hour oral in front of a panel of faculty members. Comps cause a great deal of stress and anxiety for those who take them. Many hours of preparation go into this final and most important graduation requirement. But, as the seniors learned, it was all worth it.

IN OUR WORLD

Seniors leave our world for their own

Commencement for the 150th graduating class proved to be a beautiful day and it closed another chapter in the graduates' lives. Under sunny skies, 166 seniors took their final walk around Old Main. The bagpipes sent a shiver up everyone's spine as the graduates marched down the center aisle to their seats.

Edward Albee, author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," enlightened students on education and the responsibilities of the educated to society. "Education is an open wound that I hope never heals," he said.

IN OUR WORLD

Seniors leave our world for their own . . .

Parents, family and friends did a double take as the Oreon E. Scott Award for distinction in scholarship was presented to twin brothers, Mark and Michael Crawford. As each senior stood in line waiting to hear his or her name called, President D. Duane Cummins conferred the Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Art degrees. With practicums, internships, senior projects and comprehensive exams behind them, the seniors made their next major move as the tassels were moved from the right to the left.

IN OUR WORLD

A little bit of fun

Many things happen in our own little world of Bethany and many people make life interesting here. Sometimes its a little hard to keep track of all those people who influence our days. So here are a few pictures to keep this principle in mind . . . All it takes is a little bit of fun.

IN OUR WORLD

Even in our world, things must come to a close

Once Spring Weekend was over and the first of May rolled around, everyone knew that the end was near. Weeks full of last minute papers, exams and comps finally came to a close with commencement. Looking back at this year in our world, union disputes, faculty cuts and a new principle of student concern came to our world's attention. A new era of student involvement began and will no doubt carry many of us out of our own world into the real one.

As the year grew to a close, Bethanians prepared to leave their world . . . some for just a summer and some forever. Whether the departure was temporary or permanent, everyone had difficulty saying farewell to the time spent in a World of Our Own.
